

I am opposed to any action that weakens net neutrality. Net neutrality protects consumers and ensures information on the internet remains accessible no matter what rate you pay to your internet provider. Stripping consumers of protections will lead to an even worse telecommunications industry than we currently have. Have you ever had to call Comcast or ATT (two of the worst rated companies for customer service) for technical issues? Imagine how much worse that will be when they have no reason to restore your service and you have no legal recourse.
